In the News

The results of the Early ECV Trial have been published – thanks again everyone for your hard work! Be sure to have a look at the July 2003 issue of the American Journal of Obstetrics & Gynecology for the paper:

Hutton EK et al for the Early External Cephalic Version Trial Group. External cephalic version beginning at 34 weeks' gestation versus 37 weeks' gestation: A randomized multicenter trial. AJOG July 2003; Vol 189 (1) Pages 245-254

For a link to the published abstract, please visit the ECV website.

All of you who collaborated with the Early ECV trial are listed at the end of the journal article in the Appendix. You may wish to use the following format to add this publication to your CV:
Hutton EK, Kaufman K, Hodnett E, Amankwah K, Hewson SA, McKay D, Szalai JP, Hannah ME, for the Early External Cephalic Version Trial Group (including [your name] as {your role e.g. site investigator etc}). External cephalic version beginning at 34 weeks' gestation versus 37 weeks' gestation: A randomized multicentre trial. Am J Obstet Gynecol 2003;189:245-54.

EECV2 UPDATE

Just a quick note to let you know that we received word from the Canadian Institutes of Health Research that our Early ECV2 Trial grant application is under continuing review. We responded to the reviewers questions and suggestions July 10, and now await their decision. We hope to have good news for you soon!
