Submitted to the Executive Director of the Canadian Research Data Centre Network (CRDCN), May 2011
Message from the Academic Director

After a decade the Canadian RDC Network could be considered mature. As one of the founding centres the Toronto RDC is also by no measure fledgling. There is a steady and high flow of new projects and researchers in and out of the Centre each year and activity at the York Branch now rivals the activity at smaller centres around the country. I think it is clear that the RDC is instrumental to population health and social science researchers in the Toronto area, and makes a clear contribution to the research profile of our partner universities.

Opportunities for research at the Toronto RDC will only increase in the coming years. Human Resources and Skills Development Canada is planning a number of new surveys, and the flow of new administrative data sets into the RDCs continues. A new five year operating grant from SSHRC/CIHR provides a firm foundation for these developments. Also, the Toronto RDC will renew its computing facilities in the coming year to accommodate the demands of these very large data sets. I believe that through the RDC, researchers in the Toronto area are well positioned to make the important contributions to research these new data sets will afford.

In the following pages you will read of the many contributions our researchers have already made over the past year. Their success, in turn, is significantly supported by the dedication of our Statistics Canada, York University and University of Toronto staff. On behalf of all our researchers I offer them our thanks.

d. Operation: Number of Workstations & Hours of Operation
The centre is open Monday to Friday from 9am to 6pm. The Toronto RDC has 25 lab workstations and 2 internet computers, two full-time and one part-time analyst, a part-time administrative assistant, a part-time research and computing consultant and a part-time manager, in addition to our Academic Director.

The Toronto Region Statistics Canada Research Data Centre (RDC) provides faculty and student researchers from the University of Toronto, York University and Ryerson University with direct access to master file data from a range of ongoing national surveys collected by Statistics Canada. The RDC is located on the 7th floor of Robarts Library on the University of Toronto campus.

RDCs are the only research facilities where researchers can link Canadian data on individuals longitudinally to study change over time. The RDC houses the master files from Statistics Canada's longitudinal surveys: the National Population Health Survey (NPHS), The Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics (SLID), the National Longitudinal Survey of Children and Youth (NLSCY), the Youth in Transition survey (YITS), the Workplace and Employee Survey (WES), the Canadian Community Health Survey (CCHS), and Longitudinal Survey of Immigrants (LSIC). Although the primary mission of the RDC is to make longitudinal surveys available to researchers in a secure environment, researchers may also submit proposals to access other cross-sectional Statistics Canada data files, e.g., the General Social Survey (GSS), the National Graduate Survey (NGS), and the Labour Force Survey (LFS), to name a few.

These data greatly enhance the position of Canadian behavioural and social science in the international discourse on a broad range of social, health, psychological and economic research issues. In addition, the increased access of academics to these data inevitably means a much broader base of evidence to inform and shape social policy in Canada in the future.

This enhanced access to Statistics Canada data is possible at the RDCs because they operate under the same security provisions as any other Statistics Canada office. This includes the use of physical access controls, an internally independent and secure computer network, and the vetting of output to ensure it complies with confidentiality policies. The RDC program works collaboratively with Data Liberation Initiative (DLI) to ensure that Statistics Canada survey data is used to the fullest extent possible.

Similar to last year, the Toronto RDC had 76 new projects begin in 2010 (78 in 2009). However, unlike last year, almost all were primary rather than secondary (74 primary and 2 secondary, compared with 51 primary and 17 secondary in 2009). However, there were more projects that ended than began in 2010, 72 primary plus 10 secondary, for a total of 82 overall, much higher than last year’s figure of 59.

In spite of a similar number of new projects as last year (76 vs. 78), there was an increase in the number of researchers that began in the RDC in 2010, 145 primary plus 3 secondary, for a total of 148 researchers compared with a total of 127 in 2009, probably indicative of the larger numbers of researchers per project. A large number of researchers ended in 2010, 142 primary plus 12 secondary, for a total of 154, more than the number that began in 2010.

At December 31st 2010, there were a total of 147 current or active projects, plus another 8 awaiting orientation for a total of 155 current projects. Also at December 31st 2010, the Toronto RDC had a record of 499 projects to date. Including those projects that were cancelled (n=25), transferred (n=24), or expired – meaning the project contract expiry date was passed (n=295) since the RDC opened. As mentioned, that is 76 projects more than last year in 2009, which had 423 total projects to date (499–423=76), although the number of active projects is more or less the same (147 in 2010 versus 142 in 2009).

The graph below shows the number of new contracts and researchers over the years of operation. The second line from the top illustrates the increase in new project activity for 2010. The top line illustrates the increase in new researchers for 2010. Activity in 2010 is higher than any previous year.
The numbers of primary projects and researchers in 2010 has increased, while the numbers of secondary projects and researchers has decreased compared to the numbers in 2009.

The RDC’s core holdings include the National Population Health Survey (NPHS), the Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics (SLID), the National Longitudinal Survey of Children and Youth (NLSCY), the Youth in Transition Survey (YITS), the Workplace and Employee Survey (WES), the Longitudinal Survey of Immigrants in Canada (LSIC) and the cross-sectional Canadian Community Health Survey (CCHS). In addition to the Toronto RDC’s core surveys, researchers with approved projects may also access other survey master files, such as the General Social Survey (GSS), as well as the Ethnic Diversity Survey (EDS), the Aboriginal People’s Survey (APS), the Residential Care Facilities Survey (RCFS) and the National Graduate Survey (NGS). Other data files include the Maternal Experience Survey (MES), The National Survey of Work and Health of Nurses (NSWHN), and the Canadian Internet Use Survey (CIUS).

The most popular surveys used by projects in 2010 include the CCHS, CENSUS data (all years), the NPHS, the SLID, and the NLSCY; and by researchers in 2010 include the CCHS, NPHS, the CENSUS data (all years), and the NLSCY. SLID, WES and LSIC are also fairly popular.

Criterion 2: Project Output Information

The summary of project output was determined by researchers’ response to the request for output for 2010 (January to December, 2010).

a. Summary Table of Project Output Toronto RDC

The information in the output summary table comes from the researchers themselves, with the exception of the number of projects and theses completed and the events organized by The information in the table on health related projects was taken from the RDC database and includes all projects to date (n = 499).
b. Summary Substantive Comments on Publications

The strength of the research conducted in the Toronto RDC is evidenced by its quality and relevance. A large proportion of research is in the area of health, and the preferred method of publication is the refereed journal article. Reports from our researchers reveal a steady flow of journal articles per year (27 in 2005, 23 in 2006, 40 in 2007, 39 in 2008, 36 in 2009 and 31 in 2010).

For the most part these publications are in leading journals. Researchers continue to report articles published in prior years, and the figures here show the tally after the most recent request for output for 2010. For example, in addition to eight articles reported in 2010 from prior years, 2 masters theses and 2 PhD theses were from prior years and reported in 2010, so that the 2010 figures are 3 and 6 respectively, in terms of referenced thesis titles submitted by researchers.

Looking forward to the next generation of researchers, students are the leading users of the Toronto RDC. Much of this use is research assistance, which provides students with training and an introduction to the RDC data. RDC data is also emerging as an important basis of students’ independent research: 3 M.A. theses and 6 Ph.D. theses have come to completion during 2010. In addition, there are twenty-five doctoral and one masters level students with their theses in progress at the Toronto RDC.

c. Summary report on major media coverage of RDC research

In 2010, media attention from research completed at the Toronto RDC includes online news coverage of Dr. Yaseer Shakur’s research on “Modeling folate intakes of Canadians at mandated vs actual fortification levels.” A Reuters health article featuring Shakur, Y.A., Garriguet, D., Corey, P. & O’Connor, D.L. noted their RDC research results with the following news heading: “Folic acid fortification over mandated levels results in a low prevalence of folate inadequacy among Canadians. Inclusion of folic acid in supplements designed for children and men should be reconsidered.” Cam Mustard reported media attention from his researchers’ projects in the Institute for Work and Health’s web newsletter/magazine called At Work, which is available for all to read, and discusses key research findings from the Institute for Work & Health. Their newsletter features evidence-based health and safety information that affects workers and informs workplace decision-makers. Plus, it has articles on how IWH research applies in practice. For example, see Scott-Marshall, H., & Tompa, E. (2010, Fall). Investigating Temporary Employment in Canada. At Work, 62, ISSN #1261-5148. http://www.iwh.on.ca/at-work/62/infocus-investigating-temporary-employment-in-canada

Another group of researchers reported 2006 media attention where their research was covered in two issues of an online magazine called “Abilities” as follows: 1) Daly, T., Dinca-Panaiteescu, M., Kunkel, G., Rioux, M., Spielman, C., Zubrow, E. (2006), Charting a new course, Emancipatory research maps the links between literacy and disability, Abilities Magazine, 67; and 2) Spielman, C., Zubrow, E., Rioux, M., Daly, T., Dinca-Panaiteescu, M., Kunkel, G. (2006), The data trail: steps to discovery in research, Abilities Magazine, 69.

2. One employee, Dave Haans, also has research projects at the RDC.

b. Substantive Summary

Students have consistently been the top users of the Toronto RDC and are again in 2010. The table documents the high level of use by Ph.D. level students. In 2010 eight Ph.D. theses were completed and another 25 are in progress. (Note that these numbers come from the RDC analysts, as reported on their assigned projects, whereas the number of theses counted in the summary count are determined by the actual references received by the researchers/students themselves.) Furthermore, other doctoral students were participants on a further 21 projects. In terms of usage statistics, doctoral students are the leading users of the RDC in 2010 at 50.43%, up 12% from last year, while all students represent 65.52% almost two thirds of the usage time in 2010 and up 10% from last year. These numbers are testament to the support and training opportunities that students can access at the Toronto RDC.

b. Substantive Summary

Analysts
Over 2010 the number of Statistics Canada analysts at the Toronto RDC increased from 2.4 (January to April) to 2.8 (May to December) to accommodate the increase in workload. All our analysts are students, one full time position (Angela Prencipe), and one who moved from 4 days a week to full time in May (Carmina Ng), and one who moved from 3 days a week to 4 in May (Byron Lee); or 1 plus 1 plus .8 = 2.8 analysts from May to the end of the year.

University employees
The Centre employed a .8 FTE research and computing consultant during 2010. We share an office manager with the University of Toronto’s Institute for Life Course and Aging and her Toronto RDC FTE was 0.45 for the entire year. Neither the consultant nor the office manager are students. Our part-time casual administrative staff is a student working approximately a .3 FTE (12 hours a week).

Criterion 5: Toronto RDC Knowledge Mobilization Activities 2009

a. Events in 2010

i) Introductory SAS Workshop

Dave Haans
RDC Consultant
Toronto Region Statistics Canada Research Data Centre
This workshop is open to current RDC researchers and is generally presented twice a year, in spring and fall, although in 2010, the fall workshop was delayed until the winter term, and is not counted here. This workshop is meant to help current researchers at the RDC acquaint or re-acquaint themselves with the SAS programming language. In this workshop, the basics of the SAS programming language will be covered, including creating variables, reading in raw text files, modifying SAS data sets, and merging SAS data sets. Most recently, a section on group processing has been expanded and made much more interactive. The spring workshop in 2010 was limited to 12 participants and was held Thursday, March 25th, 2010: 1:00pm to 4:00pm at the RDC.
b. Substantive Comments and Summary of Activities for 2010

There was only one Knowledge Mobilization event during 2010, which was the training workshop on popular statistical software SAS. Our software workshops are a direct response to the fact that many students enter our RDC with good research ideas but needing support with their technical skills.

c. Summary of Types of Statistical and Methodological Topics Covered in Training Sessions

In 2010, formal training continued in the Toronto RDC with the teaching of SAS as an introductory topic for RDC researchers. Along with the basics of using this software, some longitudinal programming techniques germane to longitudinal analyses typically conducted in the RDCs are included.

The increase in project and researcher activity in the past two years has limited the time analysts and staff are able to allot to the organization of events, and subsequently, there were no other seminars or workshops this year.

d. Audiences

Presentations at the Toronto RDC for 2010 were comprised of RDC researchers and generally reflected the academic backgrounds of researchers here – graduate students, research assistants/associates/coordinators from various research organizations, and faculty.

e. Toronto RDC Newsletter

There were no new editions of the Toronto RDC newsletter in 2010.

f. Website

The Toronto RDC’s website URL is: http://www.utoronto.ca/rdc

The Toronto RDC’s website's purpose is to give researchers and prospective researchers a clear overview of the Toronto RDC and what its purpose is, and provide helpful guidance and links to those who visit.

As well, the Hours web page at http://www.utoronto.ca/rdc/hours.html is updated regularly with vacation-related closings and changes to operating hours. The link to this page is given out when emails are sent to all researchers notifying them of changes to our normal operating hours or dates.

The website also contains a brief introduction to the Toronto RDC, links to the Toronto RDC’s partners, links to information about the data, links to the SSHRC application site, contact and location information, and a page highlighting the Toronto RDC’s computing and network resources. It also offers researchers from York and Ryerson Universities the same broad information offered to University of Toronto researchers, including links to the partner university’s data libraries and statistical consulting services.

g. Summary of Knowledge mobilization, dissemination and communication

The Toronto RDC activities are intended to support researchers by holding information workshops on statistical software and by regularly updating our website and also by distributing conference information, job postings and other information that is of interest to researchers and others interested in the Toronto RDC.
Criterion 6: Scientific Innovation

None to report, except to note that the Toronto RDC analysts have held focal point responsibilities for different datasets: Angela Prencipe for the National Graduates Survey, Byron Lee for the National Survey of Giving, Volunteering, and Participating and Carmina Ng for CCHS 2.2 - Nutrition and GSS Victimization (Cycles 3, 8, 13, 18, 23).

Criterion 7: Toronto RDC Networks of Collaboration, Partnerships in Research and Interdisciplinary Work

a. Disciplines of Researchers involved in Toronto RDC projects

Toronto RDC researchers come from a wide variety of disciplines. The leading sources (proportion of researchers) in 2010 are:

- Public Health, 15.3%
- Health Policy, 14.5%
- Sociology, 13.7%
- Economics, 12.1%
- Public Policy, 8.0%
- Management, 7.2%
- Health Science, 6.4%
- Engineering, 4.0%
- Psychology, 4.0%
- Social Work, 4.0%
- Nutrition, 2.4%

b. Toronto RDC Researchers involved with Partnership Networks

Toronto RDC researchers are members of a wide array of national and international partnerships, institutes and networks and hospitals, examples from 2010 include: Institute for Work and Health, St. Michael's Hospital, Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH), Higher Education Quality Council of Ontario, Canadian Association for Community Living, Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care, University Health Network, Cancer Care Ontario, Canadian Agency for Drugs and Technologies in Health, Toronto Western Hospital Research Institute, Canadian Research Institute for Social Policy, and St. Joseph’s Healthcare in London.

c. Collaboration with NGO's in RDC projects

To the best of our knowledge, there were no NGOs with a researcher at the Toronto RDC in 2010.

d. Partnership and leverage of funds

In calendar year 2010, the Toronto RDC offered paid access to researchers from government organizations (HRSDC, HEQCO and Transport Canada), as well as researchers from the Universities of Trent and Ottawa.

e. Interaction with government researchers, federal and provincial contracts with university researchers

The Toronto RDC continues to offer access to researchers with federally funded contracts, and in calendar year 2010 received paid access fees from four HRSDC contracts, as well as from five other fee contracts including organizations such as the Higher Education Quality Council of Ontario, and Transport Canada. The list of 9 fee contracts, showing the research project titles for the calendar year 2010 appears below. (Note that for the financial report, these fee contracts are counted by fiscal year, and all of these, plus six additional HRSDC contracts not listed here, occurred during the fiscal year 2011.)

Criterion 8: Toronto RDC Summary of Major Objectives, Challenges and Achievements

In 2010 a new relationship was finalized between the Toronto RDC and the York Branch. As noted in previous reports, activity levels at York have risen strongly over the past years to the point where York might consider becoming a part time centre in its own right. While being a centre has certain advantages, there are also potential challenges due to the close proximity of the York and Toronto facilities and desire of some researchers to move freely between them. In the new relationship York remains a branch of the Toronto RDC, but one of our Statistics Canada Analysts will be housed at the York facility. We believe this change will improve services to our York researchers and is a prudent use of the Network’s and our partner universities’ resources.

In 2010 the graduate level course in panel data methods was offered for the third time. Each year enrollment has been very strong, and the feedback from students positive. This course is offered in cooperation with the School of Public Policy and Governance at the University of Toronto. In 2011 we will formally review the course and plan for the future.

The Toronto RDC continues to make a number of significant contributions to the promotion and wellbeing of the RDC Network. Dave Haans, our Research and Computing Consultant, continued to work on a number of projects for the Network. These included the metadata project, the secure Wide Area Network (WAN) and the bibliographic project. Our Academic Director, Michael Baker, continues to serve on the executive committee of the National Coordinating Committee.

Criterion 9: Toronto RDC Annual Projections

Over the coming year we will completely replace our computing facilities with funds provided by the RDC Network’s CFI grant. We carefully considered participation in a national thin client computer system (noted in last year’s report), but ultimately rejected this model because it does not represent the best service and value to our researchers at the present time. Instead we are considering an in house system that will likely offer both stand alone workstations (as in the present configuration) and some thin client service. To secure this significant investment in new capital we are also updating the cooling system in the server room.

The RDC network’s 2010 application to SSHRC and CIHR for a new five year operating grant was successful, underlining these councils’ commitment to the RDC Network. However, careful financial planning will be required in the coming years due to the lack of an inflation allowance in the grant monies, and Statistics Canada’s new formula to allocate program overhead costs across RDCs. We are carefully monitoring the financial situation to ensure that the Toronto RDC has sufficient resources to support future growth.

Total: 15345:59:25 124
As per Table 3, the Dalla Lana School of Public Health in the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Toronto was the largest departmental user in Year 10 with 2915 hours, followed by the department of Sociology in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto with 2416 hours. Then York University's Department of Psychology with 2204 hours, followed by U of T's Faculty of Social Work with 1378 hours, and then followed by U of T's department of Economics with 1195 hours. U of T's Centre for Industrial Relations and Human Resources was the next largest user with 931 hours.

Other users with hours between 100 and 500 include York University's department of Mathematics and Statistics with 108 hours, as well as York's School of Health Policy and Management with 119 hours, Queen's and Trent Universities' departments of Economics with 124 and 134 hours respectively, Ryerson University (Centre for Voluntary Sector Studies, Departments of Sociology, Human Resources Management and Psychology) with 149 hours combined, U of T's Faculty of Physical Education and Health, and U of T's department of Civil Engineering with 234 and 325 hours respectively, and McMaster's department of Sociology with 432 hours.

Other users not listed above with hours greater than 100, are grouped into the University of Toronto's Faculties of Medicine or Arts and Science. As can be seen in Table 2, U of T’s Faculty of Medicine has a total of 4235 hours, or 28% of total use for 2010 (see Figure 3); while U of T’s Faculty of Arts and Science has a total of 5125 hours, or 33% of total use for 2010 (see Figure 3). Indeed, the two Faculties of Arts and Science and Medicine together have over 60% of the total usage time in the Toronto RDC in 2010.

Toronto RDC Use by Month: 2010
The Faculty of Arts and Science and the Faculty of Medicine are the two leading faculties, with 33% and 28% of total usage for 2010, somewhat similar to 2009 usage of 35% each. York University has doubled usage, from 7% in 2009 to 16% in 2010. Ryerson University has decreased usage in 2010 (from 2% to 1%), and has half the number of researchers in the RDC (from 8 in 2009 to 4 in 2010), and communication with the office of the Vice President of Research and Innovation at Ryerson suggests a presentation about the RDC might be helpful to researchers there at this time. U of T Other reflects the increase in usage from a wider array of departments within the University of Toronto in 2010, such as the Faculties of Applied Science and Engineering, Physical Education and Health, and Pharmacy, as well as Social Work, the Rotman School of Management and OISE/UT.

Contract expiry date: August 1, 2004.
Project status as of December 31, 2009: Expired.
  - Media Coverage: In SSHRC’s annual review of the research it sponsors, my research on this general topic was highlighted. They have fielded many media calls and sent some on to me, though I do not typically keep track of all the newspaper interviews I do. About a month ago SSHRC gave me a summary of everywhere my research had appeared in the media, but I unfortunately did not keep that email. You may be able to contact SSHRC and ask them for their media list on my work.

PART 2: FINANCIAL REPORT

Completed May/June 2011
Toronto RDC Operating Budget

Revenue
The 2010-11 operating budget of $440,809 was based on the sources of revenue below, with breakdown amounts in italics. Most of the money is held in one main account, except for the SSHRC and CIHR contributions, which are held in separate accounts for reporting purposes. Two changes to the revenue are reflected below. The Faculty of Arts and Science (A & S) have garnered support from the Faculty of Medicine to continue their annual contribution of $30K plus the Director’s stipend and annual increases. The University of York now shares in the revenues that come from the network’s joint SSHRC & CIHR grant. The Academic Directors for the York and U of T RDCs have an agreement that will be updated annually and will calculate the amount of revenue and expense that are apportioned to York.

Our fee for service contracts include HRSDC access fees received, plus other fee for service (FFS) contracts from researchers working for various other organizations (HEQCO, Law Society, etc.). This is the first year the RDC also charges for workshops held by our Statistical Consultant.

Expense

Expenses of $505,780.77 incurred for year ten are listed below. They include $440 in costs from the Toronto RDC operating budget in support of the CRDCN web bib project, which are outstanding at April 30th, 2011 and are expected to be recovered by the next fiscal year, as well as the recovery of $6,063.10 in costs from the CRDCN that were reported as outstanding last year.

The Branch costs for 2010-11 are listed separately and include $39,267.42 for 2 CR-04 employees at York University paid by the Toronto RDC to Statistics Canada, plus $32,825.25 which was the amount paid to York as annual support from the Toronto RDC joint CIHR/SSHRC grant, as per the Directors’ agreement ($39,267.42 + $32,825.25 = $72,092.67). Also listed is the recovery of $32,799.50 from York to the Toronto RDC for York’s share of Toronto RDC expense as per the Directors’ agreement. Not shown here is the recovery of the cost of the 2 CR-04 employees at York, as it was done in the next fiscal year.

Actual Square footage of Centre (not dollars) 3,513 sq ft

Total $505,995.17 $41,900.00 $546,317.76

1. The actual amount paid for Statistics Canada services was $326,243.71 or $39,267.42 more than shown. This is the amount for the 2 York branch employees from Apr 2010 – Mar 2011, not recovered until May 2011, or the next fiscal year.

2. Indirect cost Director Buy-Out Time, total of $35K paid to Economics Dept at UT from Arts & Science, plus $1,500 research allowance paid to Director’s cost fund centre account in Economics.
3. Indirect cost of Sec/Admin time is the office space at Inst for Life Course & Aging where admin staff office for Susan Murphy is located (45% of $12K for 12 months = $5,400).
4. Statistical & methodological services and Computer Assistance each include half of Dave Haans salary as he is both our Research and Computing consultant.
5. Computer Assistance also includes monies paid to our new IT assistant, Marvin Chen, who will help maintain our IT needs while Dave takes on CRDCN tasks 1 and 2 days a week.
6. Our computers are now 6 years old, and the Indirect cost Computer Depreciation was calculated over 5 years at the cost of equip ($300K) divided by an estimate of 5 years of use, or 300/5 = $60K, as already reported, so no costs for this year.
7. Branch cost includes $39,267.42 for 2 CR-04 employees at York U, plus $32,825.25 which was the amount paid to York as annual support from the Toronto RDC joint CIHR/SSHRC grant, as per the Directors' agreement.
8. Recovery from York includes $32,799.25 for their share of the Toronto RDC expense, as per the Directors' agreement, the monies for the CR-04's for 2010-11 in the amount of $39,267.42 were recovered in the next fiscal year 2011-12.
9. These are the expenses already paid out of operating and not reported as expense in any other category. There are other expenses to be recovered for Dave's salary in the amount of $7,180.16 at Apr 30/11, included with salary already reported above.

Projection for Year 11
The Toronto RDC will go into year ten with a carry forward of $82,933.84. The projected revenue commitments and expenses for the RDC operating budget for year eleven are shown below.

The costs of the Statistics Canada employees including the York CR-04s is estimated at $342,000 (or 3 analysts at $99K each plus $25K for infrastructure costs plus $20K for C-04s).

The Toronto RDC expects a net loss of approximately $45K in Year 11. This loss will be covered by the current 2011 carry forward. A breakdown in expected expense is shown on the following page.

The Consultant for the Toronto RDC, Mr. Dave Haans, has taken on several CRDCN projects and will be working two days a week (or half of his time, as he is employed at .8 FTE) on these network projects. As a result, the Toronto RDC has hired Mr. Marvin Chen on a part time basis to fill in for Dave on those two days as IT support. Dave’s time on network projects will be reimbursed by the CRDCN, as per their agreement with the Toronto RDC. This money will support the salary of the IT support.

As predicted in last year’s report, there is a substantial cost for the Toronto RDC in undertaking the maintenance of upgraded wiring and the cooling of the server room. The projected expenses include an estimated $79K in wiring and cooling infrastructure. The RDC server room is currently cooled in a makeshift fashion with a fan taped to the ceiling air vent. There have been occasions in the past where the server room gets too hot for the good of the equipment. A proper plan for cooling the room was initiated in 2010, and will hopefully be completed in the early part of 2011. In addition, the wiring is now more than 10 years old, and needs to be upgraded to handle the larger capacity of information flow (from 1 gigabit per second to 10). The wiring may take place later in 2011, once the cooling for the server room is complete.
