Executive Summary

Researchers who come into the Toronto RDC on a regular basis are aware that over the past year we completed a significant renovation of our server room through the installation of a new cooling system. Renewal and maintenance of our facilities will continue to be the order of the day in the coming year as we replace all of our computing equipment. While this project may necessitate closing the RDC for a short period of time, I think we can all agree the end result will be well worth it. Our users can look forward to working on significantly faster machines with bigger screens to accommodate research teams (and systems that are unlikely to fail due to overheating!). Our research and computing consultant Dave Haans deserves our special thanks for being the point person for the execution of these projects.

The following pages document the varied and successful research completed at the Toronto RDC and the many other dimensions of our activities. I know all our researchers join me in thanking our Statistics Canada and University of Toronto staffs for their dedication and service to the RDC.

Toronto RDC Partner Institutions

Ryerson University
York University*
Institute for Work and Health
University of Toronto

*Note: York University remains a partner, though they have opened a successful branch operation of their own since early 2009.
Toronto RDC Steering Committee:
The Toronto RDC is advised by a Steering Committee, and is comprised of partner members from York and Ryerson Universities, a member of the Robarts Library at U of T where the RDC is housed, a member of the U of T Data Library, as well as being comprised of RDC researchers from education, social science, and health faculties. The RDC staff members are considered ad hoc steering committee members and are present at the meetings as needed by specific agenda items. In 2011, the steering committee met in April, and consisted of the following members:

- Cameron Mustard, IWH, PHS/Medicine, 416 927-2027 x2143, cmustard@iwh.on.ca
- Mike Ornstein, ISR, York U., 416 736-2100 x77162, ornstein@yorku.ca

Operation: Number of Workstations & Hours of Operation
The RDC is open 9am to 6pm Monday to Thursday and 9am to 5pm on Fridays. The Toronto RDC has 25 lab workstations and 2 internet computers, two full-time and one part-time analyst (moving to three full-time analysts in 2011), a part-time administrative assistant, a part-time IT support person, a part-time research and computing consultant and a part-time manager, in addition to our Academic Director.

The Toronto Region Statistics Canada Research Data Centre (RDC) provides faculty and student researchers from the University of Toronto, York University and Ryerson University with direct access to master file data from a range of ongoing national surveys collected by Statistics Canada. The RDC is located on the 7th floor of Robarts Library on the University of Toronto’s St. George campus.

RDCs are the only research facilities where researchers can link Canadian data on individuals longitudinally to study change over time. The RDC houses the master files from Statistics Canada’s longitudinal surveys: the National Population Health Survey (NPHS), The Survey of Labour and Income Dynamics (SLID), the National Longitudinal Survey of Children and Youth (NLSCY), the Youth in Transition survey (YITS), the Workplace and Employee Survey (WES), the Canadian Community Health Survey (CCHS), and Longitudinal Survey of Immigrants (LSIC). Although the primary mission of the RDC is to make longitudinal surveys available to researchers in a secure environment, researchers may also submit proposals to access other cross-sectional Statistics Canada data files, e.g., the General Social Survey (GSS), the National Graduate Survey (NGS), and the Labour Force Survey (LFS), to name a few.

These data greatly enhance the position of Canadian behavioural and social science in the international discourse on a broad range of social, health, psychological and economic research issues. In addition, the increased access of academics to these data inevitably means a much broader base of evidence to inform and shape social policy in Canada in the future.
This enhanced access to Statistics Canada data is possible at the RDCs because they operate under the same security provisions as any other Statistics Canada office. This includes the use of physical access controls, an internally independent and secure computer network, and the vetting of output to ensure it complies with confidentiality policies. The RDC program works collaboratively with Data Liberation Initiative (DLI) to ensure that Statistics Canada survey data is used to the fullest extent possible.

The numbers in the table above come from the Toronto RDC database and reflect the contracts in the named categories at one point in time – December 31st, 2011. Of course the number of active projects varies in any given month or week, and later when we talk about the disciplines represented by the projects, we look at a total of 219 projects, that were active at any one time in the 2011 calendar year. This table, however, is a cumulative record of all the projects that were ever at the Toronto RDC. And the numbers reflect an accounting of all projects in the history of the Toronto RDC up to that point in time.

The table below shows another view of the contracts or projects as we refer to them. This looks at those projects that began and ended in 2011, another view entirely. Note, however, the number of active projects at the end of the year shown above (173) is the same number illustrated in the table below, as per footnote 4.

1 Includes both primary and secondary contracts.
2 May include contracts restarted after a period of dormancy.
3 Contract becoming dormant during the reporting period are counted as having ended in the period.
4 Calculated as column (1) - column (3) - column (4). E.g., UTO or Toronto began the year with 128 active contracts and ended the year with 173 (128 initial + 68 new – 25 complete = 173 active projects at December 31st, 2011), a net gain of 43 contracts.

These numbers come from the Program Manager’s Report (PMR) – April 2012 (Dr. Heather Dryburgh, Microdata Access Division, Statistics Canada, Ottawa).
The next bit of information is taken from our own database, as the Program Manager’s Report mentioned above, does not distinguish between primary and secondary projects (see Table 3 in the PMR).

Definitions

- Started: is the count of all the contracts started during the calendar year
- Completed: is the number of contracts that met their contractual obligations
- Withdrawn: is the number of contracts that were withdrawn at the request of the principle investigator

These numbers come from the Program Manager’s Report – April 2012 (Dr. Heather Dryburgh, Microdata Access Division, Statistics Canada, Ottawa).

NOTE: This is the output for the Toronto RDC alone. A table that combines the Toronto and York output and which is to be used for the allocation of funding from the CRDCN, follows after the substantive comments below.

Box 2a Summary of Substantive Comments on Publications

The output listed in Table 2 above is for the Toronto RDC only. A separate table can be found below, listing the combined output count for Toronto and York RDCs.

In 2011, there were fewer projects completed than in 2010 (82 completed in 2010, compared with 63 in 2011), and fewer refereed articles (39 articles in 2010, compared with 20 in 2011), but an increase in presentations and invited talks with 90 reported in 2011 compared with 79 in 2010. In addition, in 2011 there were a number of courses reported (7 semester, and 2 full-year, compared to none in 2010).

The strength of the research conducted in the Toronto RDC is evidenced by its quality and relevance. A large proportion of research is in the area of health (54% of projects at the Toronto RDC in 2011), and the preferred method of publication is the refereed journal article. For the most part these publications are in leading journals. Looking forward to the next generation of researchers, students have been the leading users of the Toronto RDC. Much of this use is research assistance, which provides students with training and an introduction to the RDC data. RDC data is also emerging as an important basis of students’ independent research: several M.A. theses and 9 Ph.D. theses have come to completion during 2011. In addition, there are thirty-two doctoral and eight masters level students with their theses in progress at the Toronto RDC (see Table 3a below).
This second Table 2 is a combined list of Toronto and York RDCs output for 2011. This is the table that is to be used for the CRDCN count of output allocation for Toronto and York RDCs.

Note that the York RDC had twice as many working papers (25 added to Toronto’s 12), probably due to the large TIEDI project taking place there.

Box 2b Summary of Major Media Coverage of Research

In 2011, Matheson (186), Kwan (22), Sacco (3), Jin (2), Carter, and Baker, all reported media mentions. For example, Yaping Jin had two articles featured online in the Canadian Medical Association website, describing her Toronto RDC research on the impact of delisting eye examinations in Ontario, meaning OHIP no longer provided coverage. The articles acknowledged the source of information “Data from the Canadian Community Health Survey conducted by Statistics Canada was used to compare visits to eye care providers” and concluded that Jin and fellow researchers’ findings appear “to have had a negative differential impact on the socially disadvantaged - a move at odds with the objectives of the Canada Health Act.” Jin also reported a health article written up in a regional newspaper, the Toronto Star.
Jocelyn Sacco reported an article in a Canadian magazine, and a national newspaper, both featuring her project on the impact of discretionary fortification of foods in Canada on the nutrient intake of the population. This was part of a larger project with Valerie Tarasuk on nutrition disparities in the Canadian population. The article was in Food in Canada, and the column was published through Canada.com (a national publisher of English language daily newspapers across the country). Both media described their RDC research and its implications for policy in Canada, based on a publication by the researchers in the European Journal of Clinical Nutrition in 2011: “Valerie Tarasuk, a professor of nutritional sciences at the University of Toronto who has published extensively on Health Canada's discretionary food fortification policy, said the internal memo shows clear concerns at Health Canada's food directorate about selling fortified food and drinks as natural health products.”

Matthew Kwan and his team published “Physical Activity and Other Health-Risk Behaviors During the Transition into Early Adulthood” in the Journal of Preventive Medicine and their paper was selected to be a videocast shown online at publication in late 2011 (the journal article will be reported in 2012). This videocast prompted an interview with Reuters, which distributed the story to regional newspapers, resulting in 18 online mentions by different newsgroups (including Reuters, the International Herald Tribune, MSN Health and Fitness, Insider Medicine, Top News United States, MedIndia, Bottom Line Daily, and the Medical Daily) two regional newspaper articles (The Toronto Star, Los Angeles Times), and two radio shows in Vancouver and Hamilton. The videocast can be seen at http://www.scivee.tv/node/37551 and discusses the nature of the NPHS dataset used, and speaks to the policies that target health prevention behaviours in adolescents transitioning into adulthood, specifically the decline of physical activity, which continues to decrease, while smoking and binge drinking level off.

Flora Matheson and her team reported 186 media mentions, based on articles published in 2011 on their research on the impact of gender and neighbourhood deprivation on reported health and health behaviour. The Toronto Sun and the Edmonton Sun both featured articles on the team’s findings: “Men living in poor neighbourhoods like to drink three times as many alcoholic drinks per week than their female counterparts, a new study shows,” based on their article “Drinking in context: The influence of gender and neighbourhood deprivation on alcohol consumption” published in the Journal of Epidemiology and Community Health. This was picked up by 128 online radio stations, including KKIX-FM online in Arkansas, WTKG-AM Talk Alternative in Michigan, WSTZ-AM in Mississippi, WMT-AM News station in Iowa, WKEZ-FM in Florida, WTUE-FM in Ohio, WTAG-AM News Talk in Massachusetts, and a host of others. The team also published another article on neighbourhood deprivation and regional inequalities which was featured in the Toronto Star: “A new study suggests Canadians in low-income communities are twice as likely to have poor health if they live on the Atlantic or Pacific coasts. The report was done by a researcher at St. Michael’s Hospital in Toronto and is being published in this month’s issue of Health and Place.” This story was picked up by a number of TV and radio stations, as well as newspapers, including Canada AM (February 11, 2011), CBC.ca, 680 News, CTV.ca, Maclean’s Online, Science Daily, The Chronicle Herald, Medical News Today, and a host of online news stations and newspapers situated on the west coast of Canada (Kamloops Daily News, Rocky View Weekly, Squamish Chief Online, The Lethbridge Herald Online, Thompson Citizen, Medicine Hat News, Prince George Citizen, Whistler Question Online, and others).

Most of the news picked up by media involved a focus on health issues, such as Michael Carter’s research on creating government models of allocation for planning health services for an aging population, which was featured in the University of Toronto’s Edge Magazine in the Fall of 2011: http://www.research.utoronto.ca/edge/fall2011/8.html. Though, Michael Baker’s Innis Lecture based on his RDC research, was also labour force related, and looked at the evidentiary base for universal government interventions in early childhood, featured in the Ottawa Citizen in June 2011: http://www2.canada.com/ottawacitizen/news/archives/story.html?id=e2de59a2-3de0-4037-9304-f094ff6c13d6.

Note: some projects had more than one focus, but the total number of projects is 219.

This table (2a) looks at the active projects in 2011 (data from our database at the Toronto RDC), and shows the themes inherent in their project titles. This information was also requested from the researchers themselves, but was included with the group of projects that reflect prior year activity, as we ask for up to three years after a project expires in order to ensure we have included all output, as it can sometimes take that long for publications to be realized. When looking at the percentage as reported from the researchers (which includes projects from prior years), health is still the largest focus with 42.5%, followed by labour force with 30.1%, and other at 20.4%, with financial security at 7.1%. (Other foci as reported by researchers include education, immigration, housing, social integration, digital literacy, student aid, caregiving, and bilingualism.)

Box 3: Substantive Comments and Summary of Training within the RDC

Training in the Toronto RDC in 2011 consisted of one two-day workshop on Communicating Quantitative Social Science Research, four introductory SAS workshops, one bootstrap workshop, and one semester course on Panel Data Methods. Detailed descriptions of each of these ensue.

1) Communicating Quantitative Social Science Research
Heather Juby, Knowledge Transfer Coordinator, CRDCN
Wednesday, March 16th and Thursday, March 17th, 2011

A workshop for new scholars in economics, sociology, applied health studies, psychology, and other social science disciplines.

Workshop objective: Through formal presentations, practical exercises and individual feedback, this two-day interactive workshop aims to help quantitative researchers (graduate students, post-docs, new faculty) build the skills for successful research communication. Working on their own material*, participants learn about communicating quantitative social science research effectively – to themselves, to academic audiences and to those outside their field - and gain new insights into their research in the process.

Workshop content: The workshop explores three key steps in the communication process…

i) Working out what to communicate: how to identify the key elements of a research story; how to extract these elements from your research (or create them if they are not there) and structure them in a clear, concise and interesting way.
ii) Adapting the story to the audience: how to prepare a conference proposal or a scientific article abstract; how to develop presentation or poster content for specialist and non-specialist audiences; how to transform the story into a press release.

iii) Using visual tools to clarify the message: how to create a slide show that complements (rather than competes with) and clarifies (rather than complicates) an oral presentation; how to design a poster that attracts attention and communicates a clear message.

A total of 8 participants took the KT 2-day workshop with Heather, about half (50%) were students, and included people from the University of Toronto, York University, McMaster University, and Toronto RDC staff.

2) Introductory SAS Workshop
Dave Haans, RDC Consultant, Toronto RDC
February 3, February 16, July 28 and December 15, 2011

This workshop is open to RDC researchers as well as members of the larger research community and is presented at least twice a year.

This workshop is meant to help current researchers at the RDC acquaint or re-acquaint themselves with the SAS programming language. In this workshop, the basics of the SAS programming language will be covered, including creating variables, reading in raw text files, modifying SAS data sets, and merging SAS data sets. Most recently, a section on group processing has been expanded and made much more interactive.

A total of 32 participants took the four SAS workshops most of whom were students (66%), and included people from U of T, University of Ottawa, Trent, Laval, McMaster, the University Health Network, Cancer Care Ontario, and the Martin Prosperity Institute.

3) Practical Bootstrap Estimation Workshop
Dave Haans, RDC Consultant, Toronto RDC
Byron Lee, Statistics Canada Analyst, Toronto RDC
August 3, 2011

This workshop will focus on the practical aspects of running bootstrap estimations using Statistics Canada's Bootvar, SAS Survey Procedures, and the statistical software package Stata. We will review why we bootstrap, what procedures can be replicated using bootstrap estimation techniques, and what to expect from bootstrapped results. Using a subset of the NLSCY Synthetic files, researchers will then use the RDC's workstations to calculate estimates of their own with RDC staff guidance.

A total of 18 participants took the one Bootstrap Estimation workshop, again most of whom were students (67%), and included people from U of T, Laval University, the Institute for Work and Health, the Centre for Industrial Relations and Human Resources, McMaster University, and the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health.

4) Panel Data Methods Course
Olesya Falenchuk, Research Systems Analyst, and Statistics Lecturer, OISE/UT
January to April, 2011

The Panel Data Methods course is co-sponsored by the University of Toronto’s School of Public Policy and Governance, and the Toronto RDC. The School pays for the instructor, and the Toronto RDC pays for an assistant. The course takes place in the Toronto RDC, and students need to register early in order to pass security clearance. About 15 students took the course in 2011, including a few students from the Masters of Public Policy, as well as a few doctoral students in other departments, such as Health Administration, Community Health, and Human Development, as well as a few students from other universities, such as York. There were also a few students auditing the course. The course itself is outlined in the description below.

The course provides a rigorous introduction to statistical methods for the analysis of panel data with specific application to the major Canadian longitudinal data sets. This course is offered in collaboration with the Toronto Region Statistics Canada Research Data Centre (Toronto RDC). The RDC provides secure access to Canada's preeminent panel data sets for public policy analysis as well as variety of other Statistics Canada data. The course will take place within RDC providing students hands on experience with these important sources of information on public issues. The RDC offers both lecture space and a computer lab for tutorials. While the specific goal of this course is to introduce students to empirical methods for the analysis of longitudinal data, an important by product is their exposure to the RDC data. These data are increasingly "the basis" for new survey based research in health, education, economics and other social sciences in Canada. Instruction includes a combination of lectures and tutorials. In tutorials, students will complete series of problem sets that provide an introduction to the RDC panel data sets and practice in their analysis. The statistical methods reviewed will be drawn from a variety of disciplines to promote the inter-disciplinary study of public policy. Certain topics of particular relevance to the RDC panel data (e.g., cluster sampling, bootstrapping) will also be covered. The course is intended for a) students from the School of Public Policy and Governance, b) students from departments, schools and faculties where small numbers preclude a similar course being offered, or that desire instruction in the use of data housed in the Toronto Region Statistics Canada Research Data Centre (RDC).

b. Substantive Summary

Analysts
Over 2011 the number of Statistics Canada analysts at the Toronto RDC increased from 2.8 (January to May) to 3.0 (June to December) to accommodate the increase in workload. All our analysts were students at the beginning of the year. Byron graduated in June, and Melissa, a student from York, replaced him over the spring and summer months until the fall when Joanna was hired. Joanna had graduated with her doctorate before arriving at the Toronto RDC in the fall, and is counted as a non-student.

University employees
The Centre employed a .8 FTE research and computing consultant during 2011, Dave Haans, who is also working on various network related tasks. To offset his time on network tasks, Marvin Chen was hired in March to do IT support. We share an office manager with the University of Toronto’s Institute for Life Course and Aging and her Toronto RDC FTE was 0.45 for the entire year. Neither the consultant, nor the IT support person, nor the office manager is a student. Our part-time casual administrative staff, Isobel Medel, is a student working approximately a .3 FTE (12 hours a week).

The Toronto RDC did not produce a newsletter in 2011, or hold any lunch seminars. RDC staff did organize a number of workshops however, and these are listed and described in the Training section above. (Normally in past years we would include this information here under Knowledge Mobilization.)

The Toronto RDC website at http://www.utoronto.ca/rdc was maintained by David Haans, Toronto RDC staff, and a description of our web usage is supplied by Google Analytics and illustrated below.

Research mobilization is illustrated by the vignette below.

Vignette 1

The Canadian Marginalization Index: a new tool for the study of inequality.

Toronto RDC Researcher Flora Matheson and her team at the Centre for Research on Inner City Health (part of the Keenan Research Centre in the Li Ka Shing Knowledge Institute of St. Michael’s Hospital) in Toronto have created the Canadian Marginalization Index (CAN-Marg) and its sister index the Ontario Marginalization Index (ON-Marg) as tools to understand inequalities in health and social well-being. The indices are census- and geographically-based and can show differences in marginalization between population groups or geographical areas. CAN-Marg and ON-Marg each... contain four dimensions: material deprivation, residential instability, dependency and ethnic concentration. Each dimension is an asymmetrically standardized scale, and can be used alone, or under certain conditions can be combined into a composite index. The indices apply to areas, not individual people. The indices have been used in research and by community agencies.

The team is initiating a public launch and planning a dissemination strategy with the Canadian Institute for Health Information (CAN-Marg) Public Health Ontario (ON-Marg) in order to get the index “out there” for use in more applied and policy settings. Currently, the majority of users are in a research setting and the majority of use has been through word of mouth. Research users include the Centre for Research on Inner City Health, St. Michael's Hospital; the Institute for Clinical Evaluative Sciences; the Rescu Research Program, St. Michael's Hospital; Child Health Evaluative Sciences, SickKids Hospital; Cardiology Department, Electrophysiology Division, St. Michael's Hospital; and the Institute of Health Policy, Management and Evaluation (Health Services Research stream), University of Toronto. Community. To date, the Region of Peel Health Services is the only applied setting in which the index is being used. In Peel, for example, rates of emergency department visits for asthma & chronic obstructive pulmonary disorder were higher in geographic areas with greater material deprivation compared to the average rate of visits for Peel.

CAN-Marg has been demonstrated to be associated with health outcomes including hypertension, depression, youth smoking, alcohol consumption, injuries, body mass index and infant birth weight. Validation work has also shown that the index is associated with chronic diseases, self-rated physical and mental health, self-perceived stress, disability, physical inactivity, and getting a flu shot¹. These indices and their respective user guides are currently available at www.onmarg.ca and www.canmarg.ca.²³

e. List of funding agencies that support researchers’ RDC project

In 2011, there were 219 projects active at one time or another, and 454 researchers active at one time or another in the Toronto RDC according to our own database. Most of those projects and researchers did not have funding (67 per cent of projects and 60 per cent of researchers, or a count of 147 projects and 273 researchers). Of the 33 per cent of projects with funding, 12 per cent are funded by SSHRC, and 5 per cent are funded by HRSDC, and 5 per cent are funded by CIHR. Other funding agencies include Higher Education Quality Council of Ontario (HEQCO), the Canadian Labour Market and Skills Researcher Network (CLSRN), Institute for Clinical Evaluative Sciences (ICES), Cancer Care Ontario, Transport Canada, Workplace Safety and Insurance Board, the Local Health Integration Networks of Ontario, Public Health Agency of Canada, the Centre for Research on Inner City Health, Connaught, Kellogg Canada, Metropolis Canada, and the Canadian Partnership Against Cancer.

Table 6e: Funds for RDC researchers
Criterion 7: Summary of Major Achievements and Challenges for the past Year

Providing good service to our users is much about ensuring that our physical facilities and capital equipment are functioning well and are up to date. This has been a priority in 2011 and will continue to dominate the agenda in 2012 (see below). Over the past year we installed new cooling equipment for our server room. The significant heat output of our servers was not properly accommodated in the original design of the RDC. Over the years, through the extraordinary efforts of Dave Haans, a number of “work arounds” have been designed and implemented, but they were never intended to be any more than temporary solutions. Temporary, however, has the habit of becoming permanent, and in this case put the heart of our computing facilities at risk. We now have a proper cooling system for our servers that will accommodate both our current configuration and anticipated expansion in the future.

Another priority over the past year has been constructing a multi year financial plan that will carry us through to the end of our current grant from SSHRC and CIHR. The SSHRC and CIHR funds make up almost half of our operating budget. The amount of funds we receive from these Councils is roughly constant over the five year term of the grant, while our expenses typically grow. As a consequence it is important that we are “net savers” in the early years of the granting cycle so we can finance anticipated operating deficits in the later years.

Criterion 8: Major Objectives and foreseeable Challenges for next Year

The major event of 2012 will be the complete replacement and renewal of our computing equipment. This includes both the public face of the system—the workstations that our researchers use—as well as background resources such as servers and storage arrays. In making these changes we will also be implementing Statistics Canada’s new security protocols for our computing environment. These require both additional equipment and new centralized procedures for establishing and maintaining user accounts.

An anticipated challenge of the coming year will be the accommodation of a new algorithm for allocating Statistics Canada overhead costs across the network. In the past these costs have been allocated on an equal basis to each RDC. In the coming year they will be allocated to RDCs on the basis of their research activity. As a result the costs allocated to the Toronto RDC are expected to rise significantly.
As with previous years, the Faculty of Arts and Science and the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Toronto are the most prevalent, with 30 and 28 per cent respectively of the share of projects active at one time or another in the 2011 calendar year. The actual count of projects and researchers are 68 projects with Principle Investigators from the Faculty of Arts and Science, and 74 researchers active in the RDC in 2011 from the Faculty of Arts and Science; whereas for the Faculty of Medicine, the count is 62 projects and 100 researchers.

Fifteen per cent of the projects (a count of 32 projects) have Principle Investigators from quite a variety of other universities with two international (Tohuku in Japan and Mannheim in Germany), a number from across the country (New Brunswick in the Maritimes, Laval in Quebec, Lethbridge and Calgary in Alberta, and UBC and SFU in British Columbia), and a host from all over Ontario (Nipissing, Carlton, Queen’s, Ottawa, Trent, McMaster, Western, Guelph and Waterloo).

Projects with Principle Investigators from other faculties comprise 11 per cent of the projects active in 2011, or a count of 23 projects, and include the Factor-Inwentash Faculty of Social Work (with 8 projects), and the Faculty of Dentistry (with 6 projects) among others.

Our partner universities hold seven and five per cent of the projects, with a count of 16 from York and 10 from Ryerson, who were active in 2011.

Other users include projects with Principle Investigators from non-university organizations for a count of 6 projects or 4 per cent of projects in 2011, and include Cantox, Adele Furrie Consulting Inc., the Higher Education Quality Council of Ontario (HEQCO), St. Michael’s Hospital, and Source! Nutrition.
Section Three: RDC Operating Budget
Revenue and Expenses Report for Fiscal Year 2011-2012
(May 1, 2011 to April 30, 2012)

RDC Operating Budget: Revenue

The 2011-12 operating budget of $636,233 was based on the sources of revenue below, with breakdown amounts in italics. Most of the money is held in one main account, except for the SSHRC and CIHR contributions, which are held in separate accounts for reporting purposes. As with last year, the University of York now shares in the revenues that come from the network’s joint SSHRC & CIHR grant. The Academic Directors for the York and U of T RDCs have an agreement that is updated annually and calculates the amount of revenue and expense that are apportioned to York. Last year, the amount of revenue from York to Toronto as decided in the agreement, was listed as a recovery. This year however, it is listed as revenue below. The amount from SSHRC and CIHR has doubled, now that we are in a full year of the grant. Note, however, that we maintain close to 50% of the revenue contributions from the University and its sources.

Our fee for service contracts, which include HRSDC access fees, plus other fee for service (FFS) contracts from researchers working for various other organizations (HEQCO, Cancer Care Ontario, etc.), were quite low compared to last year, with less than a quarter of the revenue received in this year. This is the second year the RDC also charges for workshops held by our Research and Computing Consultant.

Note: While RDC activity is based on calendar year, the financial report is based on the fiscal year of your University (i.e., May 1st to April 30th).

Note 2: University of York paid an additional $718.58 as per the Directors’ revised Agreement for 2011-12, which was received in early May in the next fiscal year, bringing their total contribution to $21,128.37 for 2011-12.

RDC Operating Budget: Expenses

Expenses of $593,009.30 incurred for year eleven are listed below. They include $1,110 in costs from the Toronto RDC operating budget in support of the CRDCN web bib project, which are outstanding at April 30th, 2012 and are expected to be recovered within this fiscal year. The list also includes a purchase of $7,840 for the CRDCN servers, and this amount has already been recovered in this fiscal year (2012-13), but was outstanding at April 30th, 2012. As with last year, the CRDCN is also reimbursing the Toronto RDC for Dave Haans' time on network tasks, and that amount is shown as a recovery in the list below.

The Branch costs for 2011-12 are listed separately and include $56,265.51 for Stats Can employees at the York University RDC, paid by the Toronto RDC to Statistics Canada, plus $52,778.73 which was the amount paid to York as annual support from the Toronto RDC joint CIHR/SSHRC grant, as per the Directors’ agreement ($56,265.51 + $52,778.73 = $109,054.24). Also listed is the recovery of $41,903.98 from York to the Toronto RDC for York’s Statistics Canada employees, as per the first installment, as well as the 2010-11 recovery of the cost of the 2 CR-04 employees at York paid in this fiscal year. Not shown is the recovery of the second installment from York for their 2011-12 Statistics Canada employees, which was recovered in this fiscal year.

NOTES:
1. The actual amount paid for Statistics Canada services was $388,480.99 or $56,265.51 more than shown. This is the amount for the York branch employees from Apr 2011 – Mar 2012, $41,903.98 recovered this year, & bal of $14,361.53 in the next fiscal year.
2. Indirect cost Director Buy-Out Time, total of $35K paid to Economics Dept at UT from Arts & Science, plus $1,500 research allowance paid to Director’s cost fund centre account in Economics.
3. Indirect cost of Sec/Admin time is the office space at Inst for Life Course & Aging where admin staff office for Susan Murphy is located (45% of $12K for 12 months = $5,400).
4. Statistical & methodological services and Computer Assistance each include half of Dave Haans' salary as he is both our Research and Computing consultant.
5. Computer Assistance also includes monies paid to our IT assistant, Marvin Chen, who helped maintain our IT needs while Dave takes on CRDCN tasks 2 days a week.
6. Our computers are now 7 years old, and the Indirect cost Computer Depreciation was calculated over 5 years at the cost of equip ($300K) divided by an estimate of 5 years of use, or 300/5 = $60K, as already reported, so no costs for this year.
7. Branch cost includes $56,265.51 for Stats Can employees at York U, plus $52,788.73 which was the amount paid to York as annual support from the Toronto RDC joint CIHR/SSHRC grant, as per the Directors' agreement.
8. Recovery from York includes $41,903.98 for their 1st installment to pay for their Stats Can employees as per our Stats Can contract, plus monies for their CR-04’s for 2010-11 in the amount of $39,267.42 recovered in this fiscal year 2011-12.
Below is the summary of contributions, showing that the University is maintaining half the costs of the Toronto RDC.

- Media Coverage: In SSHRC’s annual review of the research it sponsors, my research on this general topic was highlighted. They have fielded many media calls and sent some on to me, though I do not typically keep track of all the newspaper interviews I do. About a month ago SSHRC gave me a summary of everywhere my research had appeared in the media, but I unfortunately did not keep that email. You may be able to contact SSHRC and ask them for their media list on my work.
